Wild Spirits, Gentle Hearts: The Story of Two Mustang- Crazy Girls Part 3

Emily and Sarah from Sisters Horsing Around shared their story of adopting mustangs. All three parts are up on the blog to read now. Read Part 3 below!

From Sarah:

Choosing Our Final Two Mustangs

After deciding to choose another horse instead of the one we bought on the online auction that turned out to have a lump on her stomach, I searched around, longing to find my next equine partner. We were all set with our first filly, and we knew we were approved for a total of three mustangs, so we could choose two more. I looked at the other horses in the pen, and my eyes stopped on a large sorrel gelding. He was the second-tallest one I'd seen, but his plain coloring caused him to be overlooked. He hadn't been chosen yet, at least I hoped. The clipboard said he was five years old. I made a mental note of his tag number.

I still wanted to find one more horse and suddenly I saw her. She was a faded black color, and boy, was she a tank! I knew Emily would love her. The list said she was two years old and "brown" in color. I made a mental note of her tag number as well.

TIP OF THE MONTH

Breaking in tall boots is never an enjoyable task. Try dunking your new boots in warm water, and then wearing them for a couple of hours to make the process a little less painful!
