World Equestrian Center – Wilmington Winter in the Midwest I

Corri Goldman (USA) and her own Cachassini's Boy were victorious in the $30,000 WEC – Wilmington Grand Prix.

"He is a seven-year-old, and this is our first grand prix. This is really his first time doing any open classes, he has only done the age classes until now. I bought him as a five-year-old from Europe."

Tammy Provost and Jill Donaldson's Persuasive captured the top prize in the $10,000 USHJA National Hunter Derby 3' Open. The pair earned impressive scores of 88 and 92.

"This horse was fantastic two weeks ago. I thought he was the winner because he was easier to ride, so he has been knocking at the door. He was good today, and he went great in the handy."

This week's Wilmington Sunday Spotlight shines on the nationally recognized Miami University Equestrian Team (MUET). MUET is a competitive club team of 90 students competing in three disciplines and at all levels. Not only do the talented student-athletes compete in horse shows for the Intercollegiate Horse Show Association (IHSA), but the head coach of the Hunt Seat team, Heather Pinnick, travels off campus with a group of school horses and students to horse shows around the East Coast. Pinnick brought 11 horses and riders to WEC – Wilmington for Winter Classic I and took time out of her busy show day to talk to WEC about her team.
