THE CHRONICLE OF THE HORSE

Brego R'n B has been knocking on the door for a big win for a while. Since he and Katie Dinan paired up five years ago, he's been in the ribbons regularly, and this summer they really hit their stride, placing third in the $226,000 Upperville Jumper Classic CS14* and earning back-to-back wins in the CS13* grand prix classes at Traverse City Horse Shows. Dinan's been managing him carefully; their last grand prix was at the Hampton Classic in early September.

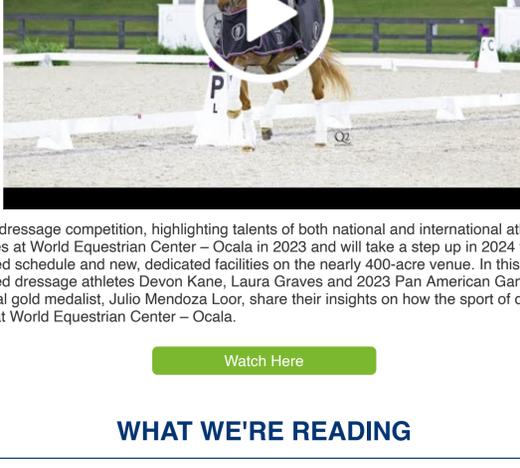

That careful management paid off with their first five-star win together in the $450,000 Longines FEI Jumping World Cup™ Washington CS15*-W for the President's Cup presented by Experience Prince George's, the feature class of the 2023 Washington International Horse Show, held October 23-29 in Upper Marlboro, MD.

Armand Leone Jr. on Why Team Selections Need a National Jumping Championship

THE CHRONICLE OF THE HORSE

I was involved in the fielding and funding of international U.S. equestrian teams as well as selecting coaches for those teams from 1992 through 2012, first as a member and officer of the U.S. Equestrian Team and then as Vice President of international high performance at our national governing body USA Equestrian, now the U.S. Equestrian Federation. Before this, I had the privilege to ride in international events and on Nations Cup show jumping teams.

Our U.S. jumping team had one final opportunity to qualify for the 2024 Olympic Games in Paris. In order to qualify, they had to have a strong performance at the Pan American Games in Santiago, Chile. Ultimately, they earned team gold and punched their ticket to Paris. However, we should not have been in this position in the first place. We shouldn't have to send our best horse-and-rider combinations to the Pan Am's, but we had no choice.

Ask the Expert With Laura Conaway: How Do You Insure a Leased Horse?

THE CHRONICLE OF THE HORSE

For most people, equine insurance is a critical component of horse ownership. It is important for horse owners to know that changes in their ownership interest, such as leasing their horse, need to be reported to their insurance carrier. Leased horses present a unique scenario for the horse owner (the lessor) and for the individual leasing the horse (the lessee).

The most common insurance policies for leased horses are the same as for any other horse; the policy provides reimbursement for full mortality and non-routine medical care. However, there are several key components to insuring a leased horse that lessors and lessees should be aware of to be set up for success: agreeing on who holds the insurance policy, determining the full mortality/insured value of the horse, understanding what happens to the insurance coverage when the lease is terminated, and considering liability coverage.

EQUESTRIAN LIVING MAGAZINE

The United States Equestrian Team (USET) Foundation is the non-profit organization that supports the United States equestrian athletes and teams. Bonnie Jenkins, executive director, says, "It is truly a dream job. Because of my deep-rooted love for equestrian sport and having grown up riding and competing on a national level, I understand the dedication and commitment it takes to excel in an equestrian discipline. So many young athletes dream of going to the Olympics. While this was not my path, my unwavering passion for the sport and my profound sense of patriotism have allowed me the privilege of following my dream by being part of the United States equestrian team in a different capacity."

EQUESTRIAN LIVING MAGAZINE

Days End Farm Horse Rescue (DEFHR) is a national leader in equine rehabilitation practices and equine-cruelty education. It has evolved from a small nonprofit to a full-scale rescue and rehabilitation facility that shelters an average of 130 equines annually, all funneled through animal protection authorities across Maryland and the surrounding states.

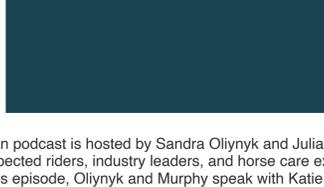

CEO Erin Clemm Ochoa says, "My role as the CEO at DEFHR allows me to help move the organization towards the future and make an impact in equine welfare. I have been with DEFHR for 18 years, and, in that time, I have seen a lot of horses that have had life-saving interventions. Sharing those stories brings awareness to the community of the issues facing horses and owners. My work means I can make a change for horses' lives that are suffering now and in the future."

In March 2023, Animal Control in Howard County, Maryland, seized a neglected pony whose owners failed to comply with previous orders to improve her care. The 13-year-old Chincoteague-type mare was transported to Days End Farm Horse Rescue (DEFHR) in Woodbine, MD, for immediate intervention, rehabilitation, and training so she could be properly rehomed.

When the pony arrived at DEFHR's farm, it was clear to the staff that she suffered from general neglect and lack of proper nutrition. She scored a two out of nine on the Henneke Body Condition Scoring System, needed her teeth floated and her hooves trimmed, and required treatment for parasites.
